THE TENEMENT HOUSE SYSTEM

Continuation of the Herald Commission's Inspection.

Shocking Scenes of Poverty and Filth.

No Fire Escapes and Few Comforts in the Homes of the Poor.

The RERALD reportorial commission has continued its bors during the week, having visited numbers of tensment houses in this city, making a thorough inspection ir dark holes and corners, diving into noisom lloyways, climbing rickely staircases and noting all hat they observed with their reportorial keenness. The ollowing concise report of what are the distinguishing n legislators to a realization of the stern duty de

THE SEVENTEERTS WARD.
The occupants of the tenement houses of the Sevenenth ward differ in many respects from the residents the down town or up town wards on the west side of city, the majority of the population, even in Mackrell b, being Germans. On that account it became neces to call in the services of an interpreter in exploring nomes of the poor. In this ward there are $6,207 has residing in 1,890 tenement houses. The average her of families to each house is eight and one-third. number of houses where the means of escape is bad event of fire is 259, and where it is good there are 431. These houses are reported good, not because they have fire escapes, but because their roofs are flat, ad, being all of one height, if the roof be once reached. one can in many cases travel around the block on them. There are 326 houses that have bad ventilation, and 155 every street. The inspection of this ward was made under the guidance of officer Walter, of the sanitary PONT PICKERS' HOME. No. 443 East Thirteenth street is known by the toubriof Bone Pickers' Home. There is a front house, with three tenements in the rear. The lot resembles the letter V piaced sidewise. The three rear houses mys each a water closet, but they are full of fith and are infested with thousands of rate. Between the wall of the rear house and the one adjoining there is a space about a foot, down which some of the tenants pour heir filth from their bedroom windows. In sum fined within these walls is intolerable, one of the occu-pants on the ground floor stating that it was so unbear ction from the smell. The escape to the roof is by a ler three feet short of the height of the scuttle, so that even if the roof were reached there would be no way to descend again. The front building is provided nth no better means of escape. The ventilation of the house is also bad, the bedrooms being close and dark.

Many of the occupants use their bedrooms for ccal bins, eating, sleeping and working at bone picking in the kitchen. The hydrant is in the centre of the yard, where the more filthely inclined empty their nuisance, he smell of which sometimes rises to the fourth story rindown. There are fifty-five families in the three coar is four dollars per month. The rental of this althy, til-ventilated establishment, unprovided as it is with the means of occaps from fire, is $287 per month,

The bones has acresped brought ninety cents a barrel, and the seast two cents a pound. Such portions of the meat as higher price. Five bone pickers in this house averaged hely income as thirty cents a day, or about nine dollars mouth, out of which they pad four dollars for rent. et, small as this income is, the majority of the houses as walls, and on the mantel piece ticked cheerily a connecticut clock. But what must be the condition of its house in the summer mounta? Refuse in the and, refuse between the walls, refuse spread on the cors, and the picking of bones covered with maggets oing on in apartments where there is no ventilation, and and out of the house all the ordinary laws of acits are set at defiance, as if disease and death were rescome visitors.

Me. 197 avenue A is entered by a long alley. There are three tenement houses in the row. The yard in front is about six feet in area, and is covered with ashes and snow to such a depth that walking is made dangerous. There is no escape to the roof, a portion of the ladder reaching to the southe having evidently been used for firewood by the poverty strickes tenants. The collars are filled with ashes and garbage, and into them the water floods when it raise, mosteoning the retuse to ret and smell. There are twenty-four families in this house. For a badly ventilisted room and bedroom, the houses being little better than stables, with the accompaniments of broken-down banisters, a dirty pard and casspool, no fire escape and a frozen hydrant, the denant pays $4 a month. The rontal of this entire appears is $96 a month.

A LARGE HOUSE WITHOUT FIRE ESCAPE.

No. 42 Stanton street, a four story house, is occupied by thirty-six families, nine of them being on the top short. The apartments are entered on each story from a long wooden pistiorm, which has no fire escape. In the yard there is a long ladder, which might be thrown up after half an hour's exertion. It would cost but little to have fire escapes attached to this building. Tenants on the top floor could noither get to the roof nor drop to the balcony below, and those on the balcony below would be in the same plight in the event of fire. The yard is very large and airy, but it was so covered over with snow that it was impossible to see its condition as in cleanliness. The water closets smell bad, and should frequently reserve a bounteous application of lime.

No. 192 Eldridge street is occupied by twenty-four families. The ventilation is had. For a dark beliroom, with a middle room, size dark, and a kitchen, on the faird floor, $10 50 per month is charged. The names of the tenants are labelled on each door. The lire escape is by the acuttle to the roof and thesee on to an adjoining roof.

BERMAN HALL.

Wet 222 East Fourth arrest is en'ered by a wide alley. The entrance to what is called the front house is from doers opening on this passageway, at the end of which there is a row of four four-story houses, occupied by wenty-four families. The stairs are dark and dirty, the apartments are in the same condition, and, moreover, are without vontilation. In one room there were found thousands of cockrusches accumulated about the store. The occupant said, with a smile, that in summer you could hear them squeal. In warm weather the bedrooms are aufocating and in storms the roofs are found leaky. The fire escape is by a adder through the coult, but from the roof there is no means of descent, and the ladder is also several feet too short. Tenasts pay $4.50 for a dark room and bedroom. One of the occupants was a crippied pedier, was made from twelve to twenty-five cause a day by selling matches. A woman isy sick abed reading her Holes, while her two children sat by her crying. The gonstable had been there to disposess her, and she faced on hearing her visitors that he had come back spain. She was the widow of a soldier who had been laided during the war. No. 522 East Thirteenth etreet is four stories high, and has two families on each floor. It is possible to get on the roof through the scuttic, but from the roof there is see escape. The ventilation is bad.

No. 506, front and rear, is four stories high. The braic closets are in bad condition, rate abound on the greenises, the roof is leaky, and the doors to the bouse only mere apology. The house was visited by typhoid favor last summer. There is no fire escape for the eight dentilies in the rear, nor for the sixteen families in the front house.

There is, however, a class of tenement houses of a betty character than those we have mentioned—for its stane. They do not compain so much of a want of fire eccape, atthough a floor rings $20 a mounts for eight rooms, as they do not not street compactor. In front of the door was a long row of the transis as houses, that had been put out on Fring, but at two P M on Tuesday were still there.

The tenement house population on this ward is 33.218, and the numb rol houses 1,102. The means of escape of 259 of these is bad; 173 are badly ventilated, and 294 have no sewerage. The avera e number of families to a longe is seven and one-third. The amount of air each person is furnished with is shown by the following table:-

population. S. Jones, of the Metropolitan police, says it has been ascertained by experiment that a well ventiliated against of not less than one thousand cubic feet is required for the hearthy reptration of an adust. Fourteen cytic feet per hour are required, and this quantity of air, when expelled from the lungs and exhausted of its oxygen, is charged with carbonic acid gas to such an extent that it vitiates to a personous decree one hundred cobic feet of sur. A supply of as least ten cubic feet per minute is required to carry on a healthy respiration. According to the opinion of Dr. Jones, there are only 134 hours out of the 1,162 that have perfect ventilation. PROPTES OF LEXEMENT PROPERTY.

The stairs and, landings are broad and in good order; and the same may be said or the cellars. The water closets should be kept in good order, as the proprietor pays $44 a month to a woman is attend them. The first floors are occupied by stores. On the flor is off the street there are a bakery, greetry, butcher shop, shee store, a liquor saloon, candy store, a kerosene establishment and a policy shop. The tucky numbers drawn in this latter on Wednesday were 61, 13 75. It was well patron zed by boys and girs of tweive and fourteen years of age.

No. 445 Thirty-sixth street is occupied by twenty-families. It is in height five stories, with a basen. The so-called five sucape is the best contrived man for the suicidally inclined that ever was invented, a perpendicular lree indder from the ground to the running up through bisconies to the top, but open al way. One man in a thousand might descend in asf. The occupant of the top floor, when saked if he we yentere down the ladder, replied, "Froth, an' I've ried the hed these twenty-five years, but I wouldn't dertake to go down that for a fortune." On the night the late heavy gale the house rocked like a cradle, the tenants expected every minute that it would come with a crash. One woman fled from it with children. She said she risked being frozen out in cold, where she was sure to get a Christian burish, re-down with a crash. One woman fled from it with her children. She said she risked being frozen out in the cold, where she was sure to get a Christian burial, rather than be buried alive in the ruins of the house. She declared she would not spend another winter in the house even if she could get the rooms rent free. The females on the top floor were busy at work on gentlemon's summer overcoats, for which they are paid $3.50 per hundred for pressins and fitteen cents each for the making. A room and dark bedroom on the first floor, with no ventilation, rents for $6.50 a month.

No. 135 Thirty-seventh street is a double dwelling, and is called the model tenement house of the city. There are thirty-cight families in the bouse, four on a floor, water and water closets on each story. The house approaches the nearest to a French tenement house of any other in the city. Each floor is so arranged that if filth abounds the trushus are themselves alone to blame, as the four families on the floor live as exclusively as if they were in a private house. The rents are reasonable, ranging from $14 upwards for three rooms. Askylight throws down light on the stairway and water closets. The ventilation is about as good, probably, as could be had in a house of such dimensions. There is no fire escare except by the roof, but the stairs and hallways are very wide. Everything shout the building looked neat and tidy, and it seemed sitogether the best house of the kind in the city. The four floors average $55.5 a floor, and the basement $35. The other house brings is the same rent. The total number of families in the two buildings is sixy-three.

There is a striking difference between the Seventeent and Twentieth ward. In almost every second house the Seventeenth there is a swing machine at work, an in some buildings there are so many going that or would almost think himself in a factory, the Twentieth ward, however, there we very few who had machines compared with it other. There are fewer rear tenement houses in th Twentieth than in the Seventeenth; consequently th most of the houses in the former ward have yards, an if the landlords would pay to have their places kept order there would be less disease in the community and their property would not go to ruin so zoon.

The proprieter of one large tenement house resides;

brother has sub-let it to another man. There is cosiderable sub-letting of houses in this way; hence the House agents, also, are so nunerous now, and such rivalry exists between them, that to obtain busine each vice with the other in pushing up rents to retatheir various agencies. The excusse they make is thall do it, and they cannot help it. Officers Irving as Cannal, who went through on this tour of inspectio

pointed out houses which, after figuring up the rents were drawing two hundred per cent on the original se of money invested. In the Seventeenth ward office Walter pointed out a large tenement house that we drawing not less than three hundred per cent on the original capital.
